Reviews

The book is great and fantastic. It is written in straightforward words and phrases rather than difficult to understand. You won't really feel monotony at any time of your respective time (that's what catalogues are for regarding should you question me).

Table 12 shows that the average rate of growth fluctuates with age, being a decreasing variable from ages 10 to 12. But at age 12 the average mental age is higher than at ages Table 12 Average results of repeated tests of superior children, for each life age group. In view of the unreliability of the average rates (due to individual variability and the small number of subjects at each separate age) it is of some assistance to appeal to correlation coefficients for the entire group of subjects. In doing so we must not, however, lose sight of the limitation of the correlation method when applied to such data. The Pearson coefficient of correlation between rate of growth and mental age is $r = -.30$ (P. E.10), and between rate of growth and life age is $r = .058$ (P. E.113). The correction of these correlations for spurious influence of the correlation between age and...
